actress. "I must get ashore because I have a rehearsal at 11 o'clock." There were a hundred suggestions herself that she has done a very reforthcoming, but Capt. de Mayo finally wigwagged to the tug Kirkham and it came alongside the Philadelphia. Ther rope ladder was brought out to ge the actress down to the tug. "My Hat and My Dress!"

"My hat and my dress will be ruined," sobbed Miss Bentley, while the rain poured and the thick black smoke grose in clouds from the tug's stack. But she decided she couldn't be late so there was nothing for it but to go down the ladder and she started on the journey, giving little shrill screams at every step while the ladder swayed and the rain and the soot changed the color and contour of her hat and frock. She had only five or six rungs to go and Capt. Miller, of the tug, and Motty Erickson, fireman, were holding the ladder and preparing to catch her.

"I just can't go any further—I'm afraid," she cried as the Kirkman thoused.

But this encouragement frightened Miss Bentley, and instead of "yumping" she fell straight into the arms of the affirman, and her gown relieved his manify figure of about half of the soot with which he was covered. Then, seeking and scared, a sartorial wreck, but safe, she was taken to the pler, and hiring a taxicab, was certain at least that she swould be in time for rehearsal.

TALE WAS FINE,

Florence Huber Should Write Fairy Tales, Police Captain Says.

"That little girl ought to quit the fairy tales for a living," said Acting Police Captain Place to-day after he had heard the "confession" of Miss Florence Huber, who told a thrilling story last night of her abduction and drugging by two mon in a "big red automobile."

"She'd sure be a scream," added the captain, because she gave Policeman Kessler a regular Bertillon description of the men she said stole her. But this morning she says it was all a fake, head, so I've called off the men I sent out to eatch the abductors.'

Miss Huber, who is twenty years old and pretty, was found screaming and kicking up all kinds of a muss last Policeman Kessler, and to him she told her dramatic story. She was taken to Fordham Hospital and all the plainclothes men of the Morrisania station this morning ,after a good night's sleep, the effects of the "drug" has worn off well when she talked with Capt. Rice. 'She said she and a friend named "She said she and a friend named Hattle went out last night," said the captain, "and that they nad too much to drink. She said she was afraid to go to her home. No. 787 East One Hundred and Sixty-third street, and that her friend Hattle told her to make up the story about the kidnappers in the auto and the 'drug,' so Miss Florence will be sent home to mother in a little while."
